MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

I. PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

Plaintiffs Hakan Yucesoy and Abdi Mahammed’s (“Plaintiffs”) First Amended Complaint (“FAC”) against Defendants Uber Technologies, Inc. (“Uber”), Travis Kalanick, and Ryan Graves (collectively “Defendants”) alleges seven causes of action for (1) independent contractor misclassification in violation of Mass. Gen. L. c. 149 § 148B; (2) violation of the Massachusetts Tips Law, Mass. Gen. L. c. 149 § 152A; (3) tortious interference with contractual and/or advantageous relations in violation of Massachusetts state common law; (4) unjust enrichment/quantum meruit; (5) breach of contract; (6) violation of Massachusetts minimum wage law, Mass. Gen. L. ch. 151 § 1; and (7) violation of Massachusetts overtime law, Mass. Gen. L. ch. 151 § 1A. Dkt. No. 27. Plaintiffs seek to bring these claims on behalf of not just themselves, but also on behalf of a putative class consisting of alleged “individuals who have worked as Uber drivers in Massachusetts (other than as Uber taxi drivers).” Id. at ¶ 1.

The individual defendants and Counts II through VII of Plaintiffs’ FAC must be dismissed because the FAC fails to meet the pleading standards articulated by the United States Supreme Court in Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544 (2007), and Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662 (2009). Indeed, far from presenting a plausible picture that Plaintiffs are entitled to relief as required under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8(a), Plaintiffs’ causes of action are comprised of boilerplate recitations of legal elements and are devoid of factual allegations sufficient to push Plaintiffs’ legal claims from the level of speculative to plausible. Plaintiffs’ allegations are conclusory, nonspecific, and even if taken as true, not only fail to state claims for relief, but actually demonstrate that no claims for relief are viable. Notably, many of the claims raised are predicated on similar allegations made in the O’Connor matter, and are predicated on similar law. This Court dismissed all of those claims and for similar reasons set forth below should dismiss them in this case as well.

Plaintiffs’ second claim for violation of Massachusetts Tip Law fails because Plaintiffs have not alleged that Uber has taken any portion of tips given by customers to Uber drivers, or that Uber has invoiced Uber riders for service or other similar charges and retained a portion of 1 such charges for itself. Furthermore, even if Plaintiffs' allegation that Uber maintains a "no 2 tipping" policy were true, such policies do not run afoul of Massachusetts law unless customers 3 have not been sufficiently informed of the policy, an impossibility here, where Plaintiffs claim 4 that this policy was transmitted to Uber riders.

5 The full extent of the deficiency of the third cause of action (for tortious interference) is 6 particularly clear because Plaintiffs' own allegations show that Uber did nothing beyond the 7 alleged interference itself, an act which is not prohibited by this claim. Plaintiffs have also failed 8 to allege any existing relationship between themselves and passengers that was already in 9 existence when Uber allegedly interfered. This, too, is fatal to Plaintiffs' cause of action.
 10 Furthermore, the fact that the parties have entered into a fully-integrated written agreement 11 compels dismissal of Plaintiffs' claim for tortious interference because that claim is not viable as 12 a matter of law where a contract exists covering the same matter.

13 Plaintiffs' fourth claim for unjust enrichment is based entirely on Plaintiffs' allegation that 14 Uber retains a portion of gratuities "owed" to the drivers. But Plaintiffs have not alleged that any 15 passengers paid any gratuities from which Uber could retain portions, instead alleging only that 16 Uber has advertised to customers that there is no need to tip the driver. Such allegations are 17 insufficient to show that Uber retained Plaintiffs' tips.

18 Plaintiffs predicate their fifth claim for breach of contract on the allegation that they and 19 the class they seek to represent are third-party beneficiaries of the contractual relationship 20 between Uber and passengers. Plaintiffs' FAC, however, does not even allege the existence of a 21 contract between Uber and passengers, much less specify how such contract had been breached.

22 Plaintiffs' sixth and seventh claims for violation of Massachusetts minimum wage and 23 overtime laws are devoid of any facts to suggest that the Plaintiffs ever received less than 24 minimum wage or that they worked more than 40 hours per week. The threadbare recitations 25 included in Plaintiffs' FAC are simply insufficient to sustain a claim under these theories.

26 Finally, Plaintiffs' claims against individual defendants Travis Kalanick and Ryan Graves 27 fail to set forth sufficient facts upon which relief can be granted. While each cause of action is 28 asserted against both Kalanick and Graves, Plaintiffs fail to allege a single fact in support of their

1 contentions. Given the total absence of factual allegations concerning Kalanick and Graves 2 specifically, Plaintiffs fail to set forth claims upon which relief can be granted and their FAC
 3 against the Individual Defendants should be dismissed. Indeed, these are the same allegations 4 which the Court held in O'Conner were inadequate.

5 II. STATEMENT OF ISSUES TO BE DECIDED [L.R. 7-4(A)(3)]

6 The following issues are raised by this motion:

- 7 1. Whether the second claim fails to set forth sufficient facts upon which relief can be granted.
- 8 2. Whether the third claim fails to set forth sufficient facts upon which relief can be granted.
- 9 3. Whether the fourth claim fails to set forth sufficient facts upon which relief can be granted.
- 10 4. Whether the fifth claim fails to set forth sufficient facts upon which relief can be granted.
- 11 5. Whether the sixth claim fails to set forth sufficient facts upon which relief can be granted.
- 12 6. Whether the seventh claim fails to set forth sufficient facts upon which relief can be granted.
- 13 7. Whether the FAC fails to set forth sufficient facts upon which relief can be granted against Defendants Kalanick and Graves.

14 III. SUMMARY OF ALLEGATIONS CONTAINED IN PLAINTIFFS' FAC

15 Plaintiffs' FAC alleges that Uber provides customers with the ability to utilize a mobile 16 phone application to hail car service drivers. FAC ¶ 12. Plaintiffs claim that Uber advertises to 17 its customers "that a gratuity is included in the total cost of the car service and that there is no 18 need to tip the driver." Id. at ¶ 14. Plaintiffs contend that they are car service drivers and have 19 entered into contractual relationships concerning that service. See generally id. at ¶¶ 5, 23-24, 20 and Count I. Plaintiffs contend that, contrary to their contract with Uber, "Uber drivers" do not 21 receive the total proceeds of any gratuity paid by Uber's customers. Id. at ¶¶ 14-16, 19, Count II.
 22 Plaintiffs further contend that, although "Uber drivers" are classified as independent contractors, 23 they are actually employees of Uber under Massachusetts law. Id. at ¶ 23. Plaintiffs assert, 24 without alleging any facts, that "drivers" often receive less than minimum wage, and that 25 "drivers" often work more than 40 hours per week without receiving overtime pay. Id. at ¶¶ 28-26

28

1 29. The FAC contains no factual allegations, other than within the counts themselves, supporting 2 Plaintiffs' new claims of unjust enrichment and breach of contract.

3 Plaintiffs also set forth no factual allegations concerning Kalanick and Graves, other than 4 to identify Kalanick as the President and Director of Uber and Graves as the Vice President and 5 Director of Uber, and to allege that they are both "responsible for the pay practices and 6 employment policies of Uber." Id. at ¶¶ 8-9. Each Statement of Facts in the third section of the 7 FAC identifies only Uber, not the individual defendants, as the entity responsible for each action.
 8 See id. at ¶¶ 10-25.

9 As set forth in more detail below, Plaintiffs' threadbare allegations are wholly insufficient 10 to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. Therefore, Plaintiffs' FAC must be dismissed 11 in its entirety.

12 IV. PLAINTIFFS' FAC FAILS TO STATE A CLAIM UPON WHICH RELIEF CAN 13 BE GRANTED

14 A. The Standards Governing A Rule 12(b)(6) Motion to Dismiss.

15 A complaint or an individual cause of action must be dismissed if it "fail[s] to state a 16 claim upon which relief can be granted." Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6). In ruling on a Rule 12(b)(6) 17 motion, a court accepts as true "all well-pleaded allegations of material fact," but not "allegations 18 that are merely conclusory, unwarranted deductions of fact, or unreasonable inferences."

19 Daniels-Hall v. Nat'l Educ. Ass'n, 629 F.3d 992, 998 (9th Cir. 2010) (citation omitted). A 20 complaint's factual allegations must show that "the pleader is entitled to relief." FRCP 8(a)(2).
 21 Thus, the plaintiff must set forth "enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its 22 face." Twombly, 550 U.S. at 544. If the allegations do not move the claims "across the line from 23 conceivable to plausible, [then the] complaint must be dismissed." Id. at 570. Factual allegations 24 must "possess enough heft to show that the pleader is entitled to relief." Id. at 545.

25 Conclusory allegations are insufficient to establish a plausible claim. Id. at 555. Legal 26 conclusions must be supported by factual allegations that allow the court "to draw the reasonable 27 inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged." Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678. A 28 plaintiff cannot meet Rule 8(a)(2)'s threshold requirement by simply reciting legal language or

1 stating legal conclusions that are unsupported by factual allegations. Id. “Threadbare recitals of 2 the elements of a cause of action, supported by mere conclusory statements, do not suffice.” Id.; 3 see also Sanders v. Brown, 504 F.3d 903, 910 (9th Cir. 2007) (holding conclusory legal 4 allegations are not adequate to defeat a motion to dismiss); Clegg v. Cult Awareness Network, 18 5 F.3d 752, 754-55 (9th Cir. 1994) (holding that the court “is not required to accept legal 6 conclusions cast in the form of factual allegations”). Rather, “further factual enhancement” is 7 required, and such factual enhancement must “raise a right to relief above the speculative level.”
 8 Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555.

9 The purpose of Rule 8(a)(2)’s threshold requirement is to ensure that the plaintiff actually 10 suffered an injury for which liability is plausible before dragging the parties and the court through 11 the costly and time-consuming discovery process. Id. at 559. District courts can best achieve this 12 purpose by dismissing unsupported claims at the pleading stage, before the parties commence the 13 discovery process. Id. at 558-59 (noting the “practical significance” of Rule 8(a)(2) as a basis for 14 exposing the deficiency of failing to raise a claim of entitlement to relief “at the point of 15 minimum expenditure of time and money by the parties and the court”).

16 In Iqbal, the Court identified a two-pronged approach to determine the sufficiency of a 17 complaint. Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678. First a court strips away all conclusory allegations. Id. Then 18 the court determines whether the remaining “well-pleaded, nonconclusory factual allegation[s]” 19 give rise to a plausible claim. Id. “In sum, for a complaint to survive a motion to dismiss, the 20 non-conclusory ‘factual content,’ and reasonable inferences from that content, must be plausibly 21 suggestive of a claim entitling the plaintiff to relief.” Moss v. U.S. Secret Serv., 572 F.3d 962, 22 969 (9th Cir. 2009). Moreover, where the deficiencies in a particular claim cannot be cured by 23 amendment, the court may dismiss such claims without leave to amend. Swartz v. KPMG LLP, 24 476 F.3d 756, 761 (9th Cir. 2007).

25 B. The Court Should Dismiss Plaintiffs’ Second Cause Of Action Captioned As 26 “Tips Law Violations” Based Upon Mass. Gen. L. c. 149 § 152A.

27 Plaintiffs’ second claim alleges that Defendants failed to pay Plaintiffs all gratuities in 28 violation of Massachusetts Tips Law, Mass. Gen. L. c. 149 § 152A. FAC, Count II. Mass. Gen.

1 L. c. 149 § 152A provides, in relevant part, (1) “[n]o employer or other person shall demand, 2 request or accept from any ... service employee ... any payment or deduction from a tip or 3 service charge given to such ... service employee” and (2) “[i]f an employer or person submits a 4 bill, invoice or charge to a patron or other person that imposes a service charge or tip, the total 5 proceeds of that service charge or tip shall be remitted only to the wait staff employees, service 6 employees, or service bartenders in proportion to the service provided by those employees.” 7 Mass. Gen. L. c. 149 § 152A(b) and (c).

8 Here, Plaintiffs’ claim should be dismissed because Plaintiffs’ own allegations establish 9 that Defendants have not demanded any payment from a “tip or service charge given” to 10 Plaintiffs, and Plaintiffs have not claimed that any Uber rider was provided an invoice or charge 11 that imposed a service charge or tip that was not remitted to Plaintiffs. Therefore, the moneys 12 they seek to recover are not “tips” or “service charges” under Massachusetts law. Finally, 13 Defendants’ alleged statements that there is no need to tip do not violate Massachusetts law.

14 1. *Plaintiffs Have Not Alleged Sufficient Facts To Support A Claim That 15 Uber Demanded, Accepted, or Collected Any “Tips” From Uber Drivers.

16 To violate Massachusetts law, an employer must demand, accept, or collect from an 17 employee the “tips” they receive from customers. Mass. Gen. L. c. 149 § 152A(b). But Plaintiffs 18 have not alleged that they received tips from riders – indeed, Plaintiffs claim that, because of 19 Uber’s policy to tell riders there is no need to tip drivers, Plaintiffs have not received tips. FAC 20 ¶¶ 19-20. Plaintiffs’ FAC is barren of any allegation that Defendants collect any money 21 voluntarily left by any passenger beyond the designated fare. To get around these factually 22 contradictory assertions, Plaintiffs claim that Uber collects amounts that Uber has led customer’s 23 to believe are gratuities included in the price of the car service. FAC Count II. But without 24 alleging that a tip was actually given or received – whether or not it was advertised as being 25 included in the cost of the service – there can be no violation of Mass. Gen. L. c. 149 § 152A(b).

26 Plaintiffs’ tip claim is based, in part, on the allegation that because Uber advertised that 27 tips were included, portions of the fare Plaintiffs received for driving a passenger was really a 28 “tip” and therefore Uber unlawfully collected a portion of Plaintiffs’ “tip” when it collected its

1 contractually agreed-upon service fee. But Plaintiffs' FAC ignores that, just as Plaintiffs were 2 subject to a driver agreement, Uber passengers are subject to a rider agreement, which is also 3 publicly available and subject to judicial notice. See Request for Judicial Notice ("RJN") Ex. 1.
 4 The Uber rider agreement specifically provides:

5 [Uber's] payment structure is intended to fully compensate the Third Party 6 Provider [driver] for the services provided. Except with respect to taxicab 7 transportation services requested through the Application, Uber does not 8 designate any portion of your payment as a tip or gratuity to the Third Party 9 Provider. Any representation by Uber (on Uber's website, in the Application, or 10 in Uber's marketing materials) to the effect that tipping is "voluntary," "not 11 required," and/or "included" in the payments you make for services provided is 12 not intended to suggest that Uber provides any additional amounts, beyond those 13 described above, to the Third Party Provider. You understand and agree that, 14 while you are free to provide additional payment as a gratuity to any Third 15 Party Provider who provides you with services obtained through the Service, you 16 are under no obligation to do so. Gratuities are voluntary. After you have received 17 services obtained through the Service, you will have the opportunity to rate your 18 experience and leave additional feedback about your Third Party Provider. In the 19 event you feel unwelcome pressure to provide a gratuity, you may factor that 20 experience into the rating or additional feedback you give.

21 Because this rider agreement makes clear that no portion of the fare Uber collects and 22 processes for the benefit of drivers is a tip or gratuity, Plaintiffs have failed to state a claim that 23 Uber collected any portion of a tip in violation of Massachusetts law.

24 2. Plaintiffs Have Not Alleged Sufficient Facts To Support A Claim That 25 Uber Imposed On Uber Riders A Service Charge That Was Not Remitted 26 To Drivers.

27 Because Plaintiffs have not alleged and cannot assert that Uber demanded or collected 28 from Plaintiffs any tips they collected from passengers, the only other way to show violation of the Massachusetts Tip law is to allege that Uber imposed a service charge on riders that was not remitted to the drivers. Mass. Gen. L. c. 149 § 152A(c). Plaintiffs' FAC is silent – as it must be – as to this section of the Massachusetts Tip law, as they cannot claim that the invoices Uber processes for drivers' passengers references in any way a service charge, or other charge that could be construed as part of a driver's tip. Because Plaintiffs have failed to allege any facts in support of this section, their tip claim must fail.

1 3. Uber's Alleged Statements That There is No Need To Tip Do Not Violate 2 The Massachusetts Tips Law.

3 Finally, Plaintiffs claim that Uber advertises that there is no need to tip drivers. FAC ¶ 14.
4 Massachusetts law does not prohibit employers from instituting a “no tip” policy or informing 5 customers that the need not or should not tip service workers. Meshna v. Scrivanos, 29 6 Mass.L.Rptr. 313, 2012 WL 414476 at * 3 (Mass. Super. 2012). In Meshna, the plaintiff claimed 7 that defendant, a Dunkin’ Donuts franchisee, instructed employees to reject tips offered from 8 customers in violation of Mass. Gen. L. c. 149 § 152A. The court held that if the employer 9 sufficiently informs the customers that tipping is not necessary, such a policy does not violate 10 Massachusetts law. Id. at *3; see also Hernandez v. Harvard Univ., No. CIV.A. 12-11978-DPW, 11 2013 WL 1330842, at *4 (D. Mass. Mar. 28, 2013) (“A practice or policy of an employer 12 prohibiting gratuities is not, in and of itself, illegal under Massachusetts law. Indeed, a no-tipping 13 policy is entirely consistent with Massachusetts law so long as patrons are informed that 14 surcharges in the form of house or administrative fees “do[] not represent a tip or service charge 15 for wait staff employees.”).

16 Here, Plaintiffs allege that Uber has informed customers that “gratuity is included,” that 17 “there is no need to tip the driver,” and that drivers “cannot accept tips that customers may 18 otherwise leave.” FAC ¶¶ 3, 14-22. Again, the Uber rider agreement makes undeniably clear that 19 no portion of the fare collected constitutes a gratuity. Further, the rider agreement explicitly 20 specifies that passengers are under no obligation to leave a tip, but are free to leave additional 21 gratuity if they so choose. RJN Ex. 1 (“You understand and agree that, while you are free to 22 provide additional payment as a gratuity to any Third Party Provider who provides you with 23 services obtained through the Service, you are under no obligation to do so.”). Because 24 Plaintiffs’ allegations prove compliance with Massachusetts law, Plaintiffs’ second cause of 25 action should be dismissed.

26 C. The Court Should Dismiss Plaintiffs’ Third Cause Of Action For Tortious
27 Interference With Contractual And/Or Advantageous Relations Because It Fails To State Sufficient Facts Upon Which Relief Can Be Granted.

28 Plaintiffs’ tortious interference claim hinges on the feeble allegation that Uber’s marketing

1 communication about its tipping policy single-handedly deprives Plaintiffs and other drivers from 2 collecting gratuities (which are discretionary by nature) from any and all forthcoming Uber
 3 passengers. FAC ¶¶ 14-22. These allegations are wholly inadequate to state a claim for tortious 4 interference with contractual and/or advantageous relations.

5 To state a claim for tortious interference with a business relationship, a plaintiff must 6 allege facts sufficient to show the following four elements: (1) the existence of a business 7 relationship from which plaintiff might benefit; (2) that defendant knew of the relationship; (3) 8 that defendant intentionally interfered with the relationship for an improper purpose, or by 9 improper means; and (4) that plaintiff suffered a loss as a result of such interference. Pembroke 10 Country Club, Inc. v. Regency Savings Bank, F.S.B., 62 Mass. App. Ct. 34, 38 (2004). Fatal to 11 Plaintiffs' claim here is that they fail to allege – and indeed cannot allege – sufficient facts to 12 show (1) that Defendants intentionally engaged in wrongful conduct; (2) that Plaintiffs had 13 existing – or even probable – business relationships with specific customers; and (3) that 14 Plaintiffs suffered any loss as a result of Uber's alleged interference.

15 1. *Plaintiffs Have Not Pled Facts Sufficient to Show that Defendants Intentionally Acted with Improper Motive or Used Improper Means.

17 A claim for tortious interference with business relations requires a showing that the 18 defendant intentionally acted with improper motive or used improper means, i.e., that defendant 19 engaged in improper conduct, beyond the interference itself. See United Truck Leasing Corp. v.
 20 Geltman, 406 Mass. 811, 816-17 (1990) (affirming Superior Court's directed verdict for 21 defendant dismissing the interference with contract claims); see also Melo-Tone Vending, Inc. v.
 22 Sherry, Inc., 39 Mass. App. Ct. 315, 316 (1995) (interpreting this essential element as a showing 23 of "malevolence."). To successfully state this claim, a plaintiff must allege that such improper 24 conduct was intentional; "[i]nterference which is merely incidental to another purpose and not the 25 intended result of a party's action is not a sufficient basis for liability in tort." Encompass Ins.
 26 Co. of Mass. v. Giampa, 522 F. Supp. 2d 300, 315 (D. Mass. 2007).

27 Such "improper conduct may include ulterior motive (e.g. wishing to do injury) or 28 wrongful means (e.g. deceit or economic coercion.)" Cavicchi v. Koski, 67 Mass. App. Ct. 654,

1 658 (2006). “Improper means” include “violat[ion] of a statute or common-law precept.” 2 TalentBurst, Inc. v. Collabera, Inc., 567 F. Supp. 2d 261, 268 (D. Mass 2008); see also United 3 Truck Leasing Corp., 406 Mass. at 817 (concluding that, in the absence of evidence that 4 defendant “used threats, misrepresented any facts, defamed anyone, or used any other improper 5 means,” the evidence did not support a finding of improper purpose or motive). To show 6 improper motive, a plaintiff must support his claim with allegations of some type of retaliation or 7 ill will toward the plaintiff. Cavicchi, 67 Mass. App. Ct. at 658. Allegations that the defendant 8 acted in advancement of its own “economic interest … is not an improper motive.” TalentBurst, 9 Inc., 567 F. Supp. 2d at 268-9 (dismissing interference claim for failure to allege that defendant 10 “had a specific improper goal – such as to harm [plaintiff]”). For example, in United Truck 11 Leasing Corp., defendant’s “apparent motives[,] … to benefit his customers and himself 12 financially,” did not constitute improper motive. 406 Mass. at 817; see also King v. Driscoll, 418 13 Mass. 576 (1994) (“The motivation of personal gain, including financial gain … generally is not 14 enough to satisfy the improper interference requirement.”).

15 As a threshold matter, Plaintiffs do not allege that Uber’s statements about gratuities were 16 intended to interfere with Plaintiffs in any way, let alone were motivated by ill will such as to 17 specifically harm them. This omission is fatal to Plaintiffs’ claim. See Encompass Ins. Co. of 18 Mass., 522 F. Supp. 2d at 315 (finding “defendants’ failure to allege [] intent to interfere … fatal 19 to all of their intentional interference claims,” and dismissing claim). In dismissing the claim for 20 intentional interference, the court in Encompass clarified that “[w]ithout an intent to interfere, 21 there can be no liability.” Id. (internal citation omitted). And, therefore, because the plaintiffs in 22 that case “ha[d] not alleged that [defendant] was motivated by a desire to interfere in their 23 business relationships,” their interference claims could not proceed. Id. Similarly, here, Plaintiffs 24 do not allege that Uber’s advertisements were made with any specific ill-intent.

25 Moreover, Plaintiffs do not – and cannot – state a claim for tortious interference because 26 they fail to allege any independently wrongful act beyond the alleged interference itself. See, 27 e.g., United Truck Leasing Corp., 406 Mass. at 816 (accepting as a standard for improper 28 conduct, interference that is “wrongful by some measure beyond the fact of interference itself”).

Indeed, Plaintiffs fail to provide any explanation why advertising that a direct tip to the driver is not required is an independently wrongful or improper act (which it is not, see supra § IV.B), nor could they when gratuities are, by definition, optional payments. See RJN Ex. 1 (“You understand and agree that, while you are free to provide additional payment as a gratuity to any Third Party Provider who provides you with services obtained through the Service, you are under no obligation to do so. Gratuities are voluntary”). And, Plaintiffs’ attempt to imply wrongful conduct by Uber based on allegations that “Uber retains a portion of the gratuity for itself,” FAC. ¶ 16, is insufficient to allege wrongful conduct. See, e.g., TalentBurst, Inc., 567 F. Supp. 2d at 268-69 (“Advancement of one's economic interest … is not an improper motive.”); United Truck Leasing Corp., 406 Mass. at 817 (holding that to sustain a claim for intentional interference, a plaintiff must plead that the defendant had done something “wrongful,” such as basing it on unfair age discrimination).

2. Plaintiffs Have Not Alleged Facts to Show An Existing or Probable Business Relationship With Which Defendants Interfered.

Also fatal to Plaintiffs’ claim is that they have failed to allege facts demonstrating a business relationship with any passenger that was existing, or even probable, at the time of the alleged tortious conduct. To state a valid claim for tortious interference with advantageous relations, a plaintiff must adequately identify the existence of “a business relationship from which the plaintiff might benefit.”¹ Pembroke Country Club, Inc., 62 Mass. App. Ct. at 38; see Singh v. BC/BS of Mass., Inc., 308 F.3d 25, 47-48 (1st Cir. 2002) (internal citation omitted) (“[O]nly a probable future business relationship anticipating a reasonable expectancy of financial benefit suffices.”); see also O’Connor v. Uber Technologies, Inc. Case No. 3:13-cv-03826, Docket No. 136, 2014 WL 4382880 at * 5 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 4, 2014) (“[I]nterference with potential customers with whom the plaintiff did not have an existing relationship generally is not sufficient to state a claim.”). Indeed, a plaintiff must establish the existence of a specific business relationship, as

1 opposed to making broad allegations regarding the existence of potential customers, in general.
 2 See Laser Labs, Inc. v. ETL Testing Labs., Inc., 29 F. Supp. 2d 21, 23-24 (D. Mass. 1998) 3 (rejecting “plaintiff’s theory … that the existence of a potential market for a company’s product is 4 sufficient to create a prospective advantageous relationship with each potential customer in that 5 market”); In re Am. Online, Inc., 168 F. Supp. 2d 1359, 1382 (S.D. Fla. 2001) (“Massachusetts 6 requires that the plaintiff show more than the possibility that it had potential customers in the 7 market.”). In other words, a plaintiff does not meet his burden “where [he] alleges interference 8 only with [his] general efforts to compete for prospective customers in the market at large.”
 9 Katin v. Nat’l Real Estate Information Servs, Inc. Case No. 07-10882-DPW, 2009 WL 929554, at 10 *8 (D. Mass. Mar. 31, 2009). (“[W]here the alleged interference amount[s] to no more than 11 general competition for prospective customers in the same marketplace,” the elements of tortious 12 interference are not satisfied).

13 Plaintiffs baldly contend that Uber’s advertisements about gratuities “constitute[] unlawful 14 tortious interference with the contractual and/or advantageous relationship that exists between the 15 drivers and the customers.” FAC, Count III. Fatal to Plaintiffs’ claim, however, is that they “fail 16 to make specific allegations of interference with particular customer relationships,” Katin, 2009 17 WL 929554, at * 8-9, and instead rest on insufficient and vague allegations regarding 18 advertisements made to “customers” at large, see FAC ¶¶ 14-22. See Laser Labs, Inc., 29 F.
 19 Supp.2d at 23-24 (reasoning that plaintiff could not support existence of “advantageous business 20 relationships” based on advertising flyers and inquiries alone). Indeed, to sufficiently state a 21 claim, Plaintiffs would have to allege facts sufficient to show that, at the time Uber made the 22 alleged statements, Plaintiffs were already in specifically identifiable relationships with certain 23 passengers, or that such relationships were probable, and that those relationships were disrupted 24 by the alleged statements. See Katin, 2009 WL 929554, at * 8-9; Laser Labs, Inc., 29 F. Supp. 2d 25 at 23-24.

26 Notably, applying a similar standard, this Court in O’Connor, 2014 WL 4382880 at * 6, 27 dismissed plaintiffs’ interference claims, holding “Plaintiffs did not have an ‘existing’ 28 relationship with potential Uber customers at the time those potential Uber customers

1 encountered Uber’s allegedly misleading advertising and marketing materials.” In that case, like 2 here, the plaintiffs alleged that it was Uber’s alleged advertising to customers that “gratuity is 3 included” that constitutes an unlawful interference with drivers’ contracts with customers. See id.
 4 at *5 (citing Roth v. Rhodes, 25 Cal.App.4th 530, 546 (1994); Silicon Labs Integration, Inc. v.
 5 Melman, Case No. C08-04030-RMW, 2010 WL 890140 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 8, 2010); and Westside 6 Center Associates v. Safeway Stores 23, Inc., 42 Cal.App.4th 507, 510 (1996)). Likewise, here 7 Plaintiffs have alleged no facts to support that Uber interfered in any way with Plaintiffs’ existing 8 clients. Accordingly, like in Katin and O’Connor, Plaintiffs’ tortious interference claims should 9 be dismissed.

10 3. Plaintiffs Have Not Pled Facts Sufficient to Show that Defendants’ 11 Conduct Caused Any Loss of Advantage.

12 For similar reasons, Plaintiffs’ threadbare allegation that Uber interfered with “the 13 contractual and/or advantageous relationship that exists between the drivers and the customers,” 14 Count III, is insufficient to satisfy the federal pleading standard because it fails to put Uber on 15 notice of the particular economic relationships with which it supposedly interfered. As explained 16 supra, a plaintiff “may not speculate about future business relationships when alleging this tort;” 17 instead, a plaintiff must assert “a specific business relationship that was interfered with.” 18 Sherman v. Clear Channel Outdoor, Inc., 889 F. Supp. 2d 168, 177 (D. Mass. 2012) (citing Singh 19 v. BC/BS of Mass., Inc., 308 F.3d 25, 47-48 (1st Cir. 2002)) (dismissing plaintiff’s claim for 20 tortious interference).

21 Plaintiffs have conclusorily alleged that “Uber drivers have not received tips that 22 customers would otherwise leave for them,” FAC ¶ 22, based solely on Defendants’ (lawful) 23 communication that “there is no need to tip” drivers. Id. at 14. This allegation, however, does 24 not notify Uber which passengers Plaintiffs assumed would pay gratuities (which are, by 25 definition, discretionary) to which drivers, at what rate those gratuities would be paid, or that they 26 suffered any “loss of the advantage” directly as a result of Defendants’ advertisements. This 27 omission is fatal to Plaintiffs’ claim; Plaintiffs cannot simply rest on allegations that assume that, 28 but for Defendants’ advertisements, gratuities would be forthcoming without setting forth specific

1 relationships that were interfered with. See Sherman, 889 F. Supp. 2d at 177 (“The mere 2 possibility that [plaintiff’s] proposal would be accepted … is not sufficient.”); see also Brewster
 3 Wallcovering Co. v. Blue Mountain Wallcoverings, Inc., 68 Mass. App. Ct. 582, 608-09 (2007)
 4 (“Brewster offered no evidence establishing that any specific customers terminated their dealings
 5 with it because of [Defendant’s alleged tortious conduct]…”); Singh v. BC/BS of Mass., Inc., 308
 6 F.3d 25, 47-48 (1st Cir. 2002) (affirming summary judgment against plaintiff on his tortious 7 interference claims due to plaintiff’s failure to identify a “single member of the public to whom 8 the investigation [of his practice] was disclosed” or “even estimate how many patients actually 9 left or avoided his practice on account of it.”).

10 4. Plaintiffs’ Interference Claim Fails Because The FAC Concedes That 11 Uber Is Not A Stranger To The Relationships In Question.

12 Plaintiffs’ tortious interference claim also fails because Uber is not a “stranger” to the 13 alleged relationships upon which Plaintiffs attempt to premise their claim. It is axiomatic that, in 14 Massachusetts, “a party cannot be sued for interference with its own contract or relationship.” 15 Lyons v. Gillette, 882 F. Supp. 2d 217, 236 (D. Mass. 2012) (plaintiff’s tortious interference claim 16 was barred to the extent she failed to allege interference by a third party). Indeed, “there is a 17 requirement that for the action of tortious interference with contractual relations to be 18 maintained[,] the defendant must be a stranger to the contract.” Richards v. Relentless, Inc., 341 19 F.3d 35, 43-44 (1st Cir. 2003) (affirming that defendant’s insurance carrier “cannot be considered 20 a ‘stranger’ or ‘third-party’ to the [settlement/daily maintenance] contract between [plaintiff and 21 defendant] within tortious interference case law”); see also Riseman v. Orion Research Co., 394 22 Mass. 311, 314 (1985) (“A claim for interference with an advantageous business relationship 23 involves one who, without privilege to do so, intentionally induces or causes a third person not to 24 enter into or continue a business relationship with another.”).

25 Plaintiffs contend that Uber’s “fail[ure] to remit the total proceeds of gratuities to the 26 drivers,” and conduct in “informing Uber customers that is no need to tip their drivers,” interfered 27 with Plaintiffs’ advantageous business relationship with the passengers. FAC, Count III.
 28 However, according to Plaintiffs’ own allegations, Plaintiffs and the Uber riders would have had

1 no relationship with one another but for Uber, which “provides car service [to the passengers] via 2 an on demand dispatch system” and allows the customers “to hail” Plaintiffs “on a mobile phone 3 application.” FAC ¶¶ 11–12. That is, according to Plaintiffs’ allegations, Uber creates and 4 facilitates any alleged business relationship that exists between Plaintiffs and the passengers and 5 Uber distributes the payments from the passengers to Plaintiffs, minus Uber’s agreed-upon fee.
 6 In such a context, Uber cannot be said to be a “third-party” or “stranger” to the alleged economic 7 relationship between Plaintiffs and the passengers, and, therefore, cannot be held liable for 8 tortious interference with such relationships.

9 D. Plaintiffs’ Fourth Claim for Unjust Enrichment/Quantum Meruit Is 10 Unsupported By Any Factual Allegations And Should Be Dismissed.

11 Plaintiffs’ fourth claim alleges a claim for unjust enrichment/quantum meruit. According 12 to Plaintiffs’ FAC, Defendants have “been unjustly enriched through their retention of a portion 13 of the gratuities owed to the drivers.” FAC Count IV. A claim for unjust enrichment is an 14 equitable cause of action which available only to plaintiffs who lack adequate remedies at law.
 15 Ruiz v. Bally Total Fitness Holding Corp., 447 F. Supp. 2d 23, 29 (D. Mass. 2006) aff’d, 496 F.3d 16 1 (1st Cir. 2007). “A claim for unjust enrichment requires proof that the defendant was enriched 17 to the plaintiff’s detriment without justification or an adequate legal remedy.” Id. Here, as 18 discussed above, the parties have an actual agreement covering compensation – including how 19 applicable fares and fees will be calculated. Given the existence of this express contract, 20 Plaintiffs are unable to state a claim in quantum meruit, and this claim should be dismissed with 21 prejudice. See also O’Connor 2013 WL 6354534 at *13 (“Because Plaintiffs allege that 22 ‘gratuities’ Uber collects are part of the fare paid by customers, and the Licensing Agreement 23 governs how fares will be divvied up between drivers and Uber, the agreement covers the subject
 24 matter of a quantum meruit claim: compensation for services rendered. … Therefore, Uber’s 25 motion to dismiss the quantum meruit claim is granted with prejudice.”).

26 E. Plaintiffs’ Fifth Claim for Breach of Contract Is Unsupported By Any Factual 27 Allegations And Should Be Dismissed.

28 Plaintiffs’ Firth Cause of Action claims that they are third party beneficiaries of a

1 contractual relationship between Defendants and riders, and that riders “pay what they reasonably 2 believe is gratuity for the benefit of the drivers.” FAC Count V. Both state and federal courts in 3 Massachusetts utilize the Restatement of Contracts to analyze breach of contract claims alleging a 4 third-party beneficiary. Markle v. HSBC Mortgage Corp. (USA), 844 F. Supp. 2d 172, 180 (D.
 5 Mass. 2011) (“[B]oth Massachusetts law and federal common law follow the Restatement 6 (Second) of Contracts to assess the rights of third-party beneficiaries.”). “Under Massachusetts 7 law, a contract does not confer third-party beneficiary status unless the ‘language and 8 circumstances of the contract’ show that the parties to the contract ‘clear[ly] and definite[ly]’ 9 intended the beneficiary to benefit from the promised performance.” Cumis Ins. Soc., Inc. v. BJ's 10 Wholesale Club, Inc., 455 Mass. 458, 466, 918 N.E.2d 36 (2009), quoting from Anderson v. Fox 11 Hill Village Homeowners Corp., 424 Mass. 365, 366–367, 676 N.E.2d 821 (1997). In Cumis, the 12 Supreme Judicial Court affirmed the dismissal of a third-party beneficiary claim where the 13 plaintiffs’ complaint “assert[ed] merely the conclusion that they were third-party beneficiaries to 14 the defendants’ agreements without setting forth any factual allegations concerning the 15 defendants’ intentions....” Id. at 467, 918 N.E.2d 36.

16 Likewise, here Plaintiffs’ Count V asserts only that they are “third-party beneficiaries” 17 without stating with any specificity the terms in the contract that make them so, nor alleging what 18 terms of the contract, to which they were not a party, Defendants breached, causing them damage.
 19 Greenwich Ins. Co. v. Rodgers, 729 F. Supp. 2d 1158, 1163 (C.D. Cal. 2010) (“To state a claim 20 for breach of contract under California law, a plaintiff must allege (1) the existence of a contract; 21 (2) that he has performed or that his nonperformance is excused; (3) defendant’s breach of the 22 contract; and (4) damages resulting from the breach.”). Because Plaintiffs have not alleged any 23 facts to support their status as third-party beneficiaries or to describe how the contract was 24 breached, their claim fails. See Doherty v. Admiral's Flagship Condo. Trust, 80 Mass. App. Ct.
 25 104, 111, (2011) (“[H]ere, the plaintiff’s bare allegation as to each count that she ‘was an intended 26 beneficiary of said contract,’ with no additional facts regarding the defendants’ intent, fails to 27 state a claim for relief as an intended third-party beneficiary to a contract.”).

28

1 F. Plaintiffs Have Alleged No Facts to Support Their Sixth Claim for Violation 2 of Massachusetts Minimum Wage Law.

3 Plaintiffs' newly-pleaded minimum wage claim fails for multiple reasons. First, to state a 4 claim for unpaid minimum wage, at a minimum a plaintiff must allege that he worked in a given 5 week without being compensated for the hours worked. Landers v. Quality Commc'nns, Inc., 771
 6 F.3d 638, 645 (9th Cir. 2014) (dismissing FLSA minimum wage allegations because plaintiff 7 failed to plead any detail regarding a given workweek when he was not paid minimum wages).
 8 Here, Plaintiffs devote only a single sentence to support their claim that Defendants violated the 9 Massachusetts minimum wage law, claiming that "Defendants do not ensure that drivers receive 10 at least the Massachusetts minimum wage, and drivers often receive less than minimum wage." 11 FAC 28. The FAC does not even allege that Plaintiffs themselves worked any hour for which 12 they were paid less than the applicable minimum wage. Plaintiffs' single conclusory sentence is 13 wholly insufficient to sustain a claim for minimum wage violations. Landers, 771 F.3d at 645.
 14 Therefore, the FAC fails to meet the minimum pleading requirements in Iqbal, and Plaintiffs' 15 minimum wage claim should be dismissed.

16 Second, even if Plaintiffs had alleged that they themselves were not paid an hourly rate 17 equal to the Massachusetts minimum, they have not pleaded what "work" they were doing for 18 which they were not compensated. Do Plaintiffs claim that they performed work about which 19 Defendants were aware, but for which Plaintiffs received no compensation? Are they claiming 20 that they were not paid for time during which they were "on-call" but not working, time which is 21 not compensable under Massachusetts law? Alternatively, are they alleging that they were 22 compensated for the work that they did, but for some reason at a rate lower than the applicable 23 Massachusetts minimum wage²? It is impossible to interpret Plaintiffs' theory of recovery 24 because the FAC is devoid of any facts that would permit Defendants to defend against this claim.
 25 Therefore, Plaintiffs' allegations of minimum wage violations should be dismissed for failure to

26
 27 ² In fact, the Boston, Massachusetts UberX rates available publicly on Uber's website 28 guarantee a minimum rate of $0.21 per minute – the equivalent of $12.60 an hour – plus an additional $1.20 per mile, making Plaintiffs' minimum wage claims even more implausible.
 RJN Exh. 2.

1 state a claim.

2 G. Plaintiffs Have Alleged No Facts to Support Their Sixth Claim for Violation 3 of Massachusetts Overtime Law.

4 Like Plaintiffs' claim for minimum wages, Plaintiffs' claim for violation of Massachusetts 5 overtime law is devoid of any substantive factual allegations sufficient to support their claim.
 6 Like a minimum wage claim, "to survive a motion to dismiss, a plaintiff asserting a claim to 7 overtime payments must allege that she worked more than forty hours in a given workweek 8 without being compensated for the overtime hours worked during that workweek." Landers, 771 9 F.3d at 644-45. Here, the FAC simply states: "Defendants also do not pay time-and-a-half for 10 hours drivers work beyond 40 per week. Drivers often work more than 40 hours per week 11 without receiving any overtime pay."

12 Again, Plaintiffs' claim must fail because they do not even allege that they themselves 13 ever worked over 40 hours in one week. Likewise, because Plaintiffs have not pleaded what 14 work they claim should be compensated at an overtime rate, their overtime claim should be 15 dismissed.

16 H. The Court Should Dismiss Plaintiffs' Claims Against Kalanick And Graves 17 Because The FAC Fails To State Sufficient Facts Upon Which Relief Can Be Granted As To Them.

18 Finally, Plaintiffs' claims against individual defendants Travis Kalanick and Ryan Graves
 19 fail to set forth sufficient facts upon which relief can be granted. Plaintiffs allege that Kalanick 20 and Graves are, respectively, the President and Vice President and Directors of Uber. FAC at ¶¶ 21 9-10. Plaintiffs further allege, in a summary and conclusory fashion, that Kalanick and Graves 22 are "responsible for the pay practices and employment policies of Uber." Id. But Plaintiffs fail to 23 provide any specific factual assertions to support this contention. Indeed, other than this 24 conclusory allegation, there are no factual allegations pertaining to Kalanick and Graves.

25 And while each count in the FAC is asserted against both Kalanick and Graves, Plaintiffs 26 fail to allege a single fact in support of their contentions. Indeed, there are no allegations as to 27 how Kalanick and Graves purportedly interfered with any alleged contract. There are no 28 allegations that Kalanick and Graves purportedly entered into any express or implied contract

1 with Plaintiffs. And there are no allegations to suggest that Kalanick and Graves entered into any 2 employment relationship with Plaintiffs, let alone an employer-employee relationship. Instead, 3 each and every factual allegation in Plaintiffs' "Statement of Facts," Paragraphs 11 through 27 of 4 the FAC, alleges only Uber as the wrongful actor. See, generally, FAC ¶¶ 11-27 ("11. "Uber 5 provides care service..."; "12. Uber offers customers..."; "13. Uber's website advertises..."; "14.
 6 Uber has stated..."; etc.). Therefore, each of the claims against the individual defendants should 7 be dismissed.

8 Indeed, these are the very same allegations made in O'Connor, which this Court held were 9 insufficient to plausibly plead individual liability. See O'Connor v. Uber Technologies, Inc., 10 Case No. 3:13-cv-03826, Docket No. 58, 2014 WL 4382880 at * 18 ("Identifying [individual 11 defendants'] roles in the corporation and alleging that they were 'responsible' for pay practices 12 and employment policies does not make it plausible that they were personally liable, any more so 13 than it would make any officer responsible for the torts allegedly committed by their 14 corporation.").

15 In addition to the reasons set forth above, given the total absence of factual allegations 16 concerning Kalanick and Graves specifically, Plaintiffs fail to set forth claims upon which relief 17 can be granted, and their FAC should be dismissed as to the individual Defendants.

18 V. CONCLUSION

19 For the foregoing reasons, the Court should grant Defendants' motion and dismiss 20 Defendants Kalanick and Graves, and Counts II through VII with prejudice.
